*LONDON ISSUE feat. BIRMINGHAM&SHEFIELD

www.ekosystem.org

bęc ziemię

It's been a long time since all you pornoreaders enjoyed last issue of Pornofiti. A lot of sad but also a lot of happy things came along. But now we are back on the tracks with brand new material and we hope that this time you will like it too.

Porno team spent almost one year in beautiful city of London and now you have a great chance to read and see what that city has to offer. Multicultural mix is creating one of the most interesting of places in the world. We are bringing you just a small part of it, let us be your tourist guides, but to see more you will have to go there and try everything by yourself.

Peace.

Dear Kelly,
MY telephone was out of order and I popped over to a neighbour's house to try and report it.
I was greeted by a man who said he was an engineer and he was in a bit of a hurry to go back home and made a note of my name and phone number.
I returned for it I found it, saying that a wire had been cut. He said he would fix it for me and I was grateful. He said he would call me when it was fixed and I was grateful. He said he would call me when it was fixed and I was grateful.

Here, that did it. Another one. Making my life a living hell. I was grateful. He said he would call me when it was fixed and I was grateful.

Travelling in London is fuckin' expensive. I'm sure that most of you, dear PORNREADERS don't want to spend cash on silly travelcards or buspasses. You don't have to.

I can tell you some tricks that will make your travelling cheeper so you could spend money on something else like beer or drugs . Some tube stations like Shoreditch or New Cross Gate don't have gates. Most of them do have, so there is another method. Just "glue" to someone when crossing the gate. Of course you can get killed like the Brazilian boy who crossed gate without stopping.

The same is with commuter trains. There are gates in the endstations, but sometimes, mostly on Sunday, or late evenings, the gates are open, especially in London Bridge or Cannon Street. But most of the suburb stations don't have gates, so you can travel for free if you are lucky.

The most beautiful station is without a doubt Clapham Junction, the bussiest station over London- every minute couple trains arrive. Travelling by bus is much more easier. If the bus driver is blind or old or lazy he won't check your buspass, so you can buy it once and then just show it like a piece of paper. And you have to show it only in the famous red doubledeckers. If you travel in one floor bus, the driver won't check your ticket, but be careful of ticket control anyway.

BLAZIN

GLORY

Blazin Glory formed in the December of 2003, with original members Speedos and Little Gussy. Since then members have come and gone, but the current line up is: Speedos, Little Gussy, and En.I.
Blazin Glory both do radio shows playing all sorts of music garage/grime as well as producing and vocaling our own tunes. Since forming, Blazin Glory have worked with many people on many different projects. These people include both big names within the scene, and talented lesser known people.

Blazin Glory are currently making a mix CD (Full info on the 'BG 1st Base Mix CD' page).

A close-up photograph of a man in a recording studio. He is wearing large black headphones and a professional microphone on a boom arm. The microphone is silver and has a pop filter. The background is dark, and the lighting is focused on the man's face and the microphone.

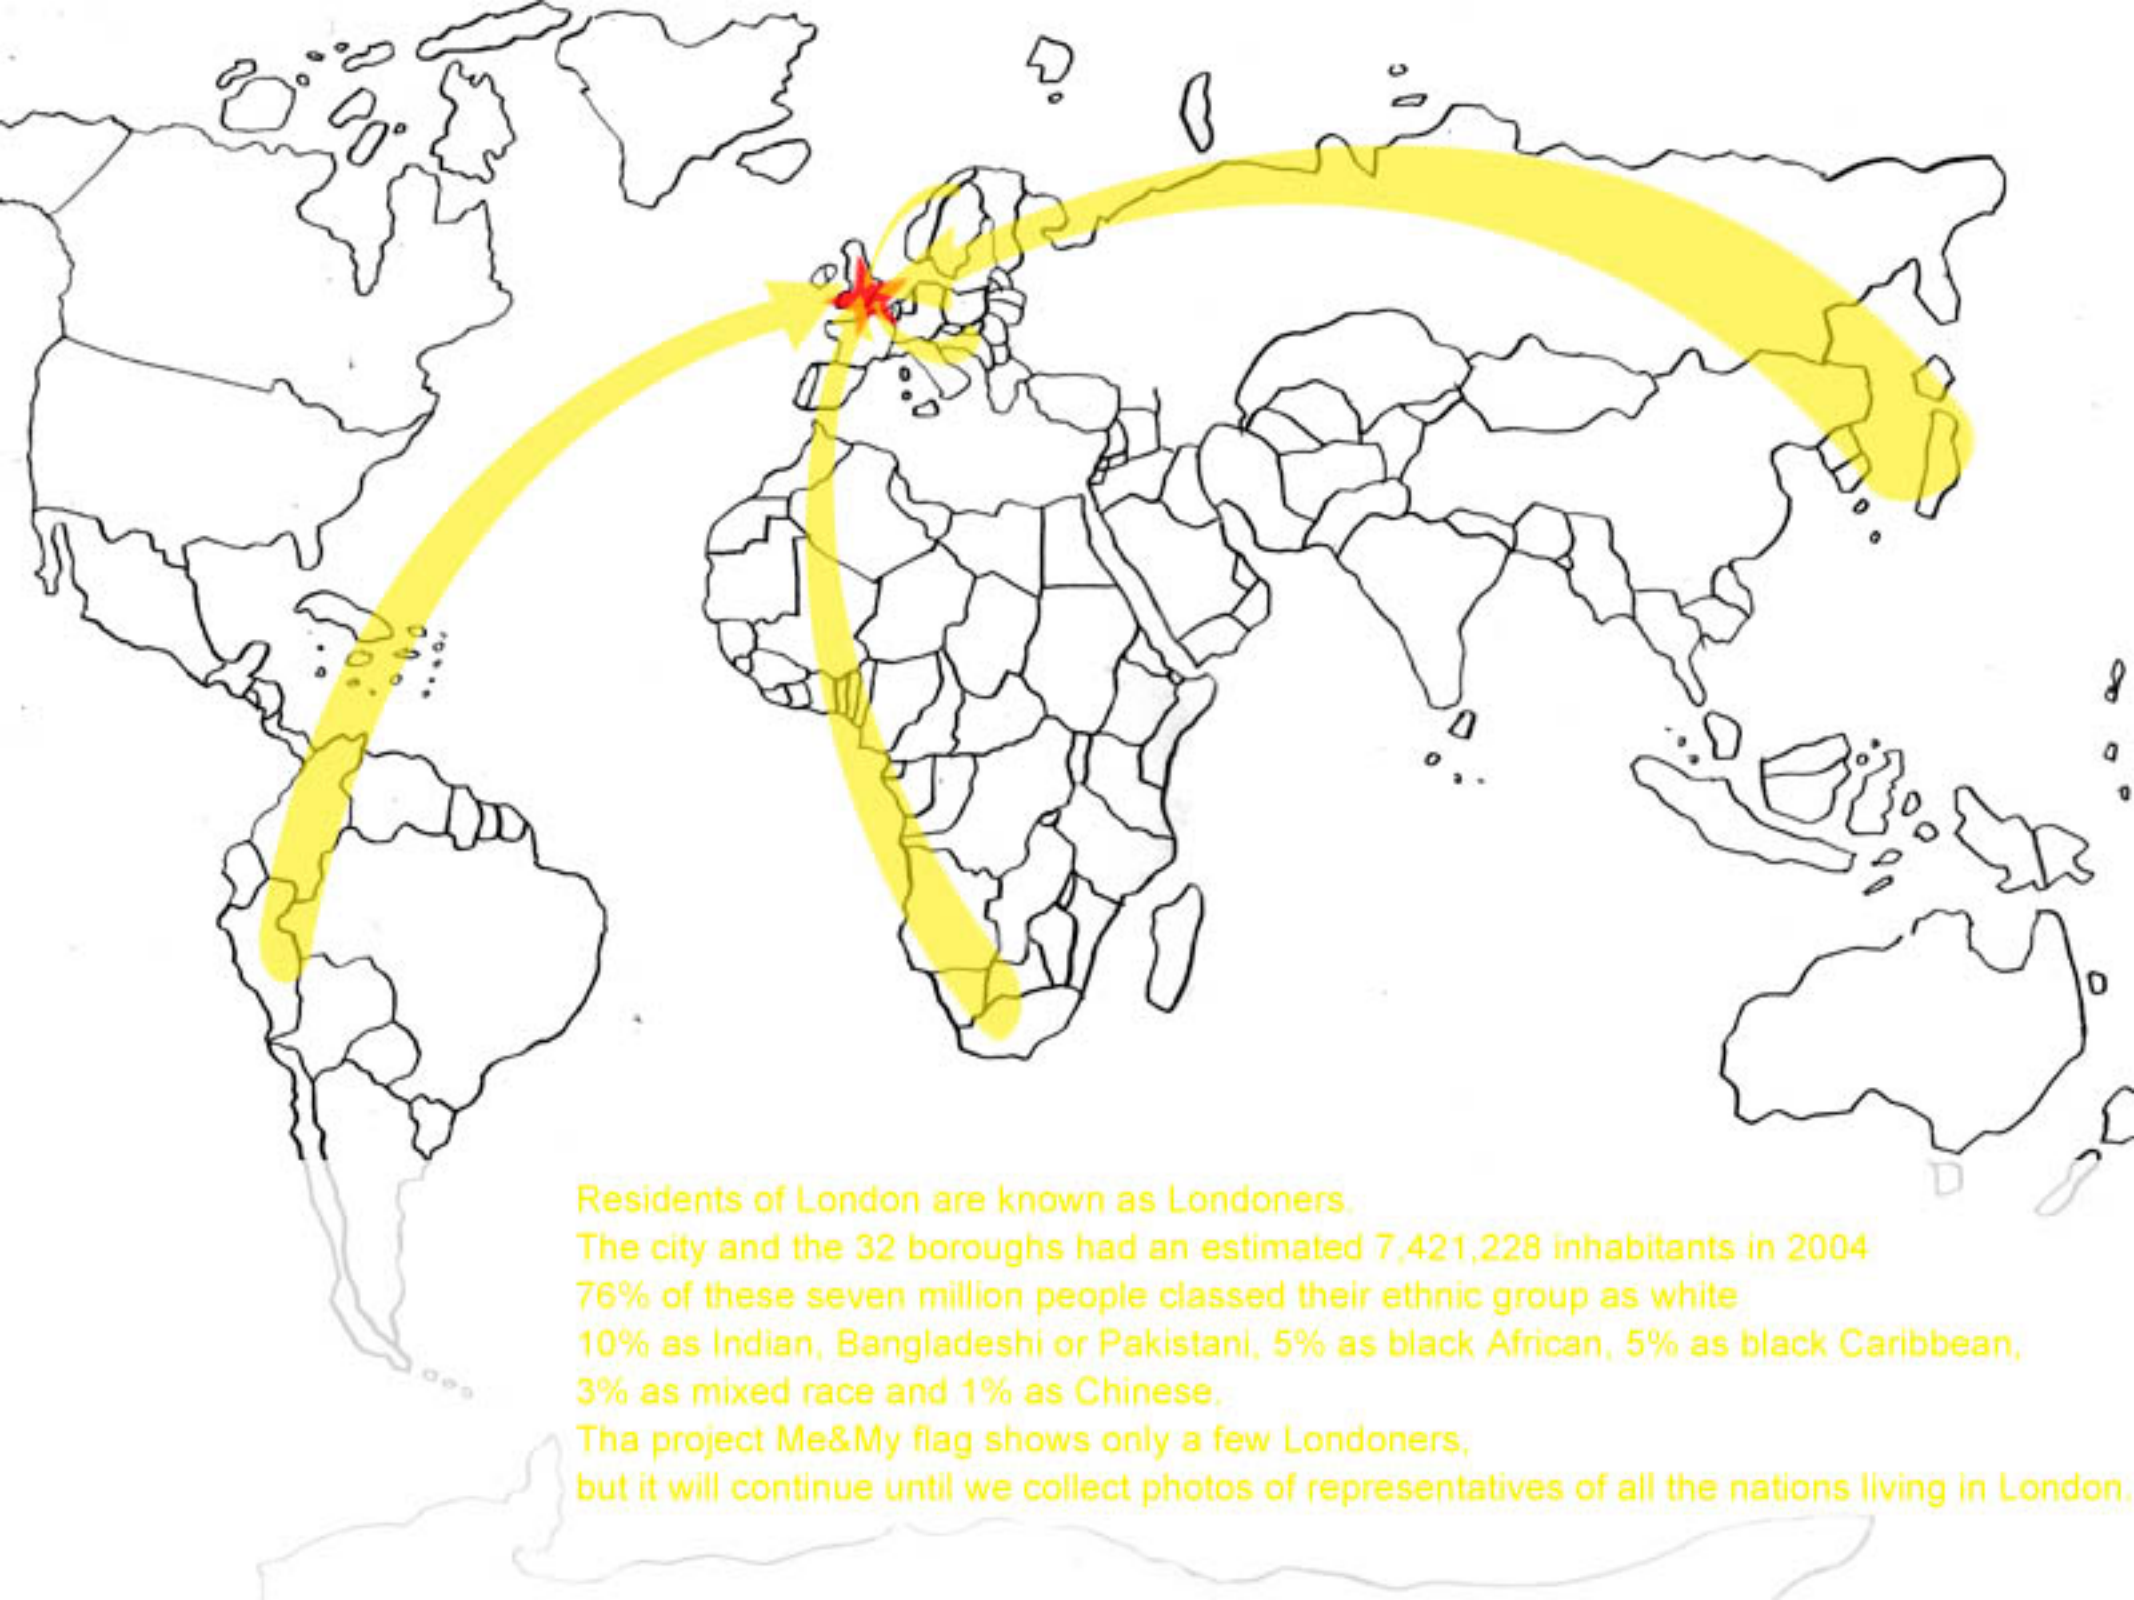

Speedos is a 21-year-old MC host, producer, repping West London. Having started MCing at the start of 2000, he has a lot of experience on both radio and performing in front of people.

Speedos believes having lyrics with meaning is the way forward, so only talks about things that relate to him, or he has experienced. This means he has NO gun talk lyrics.

We threw few words at him and asked for a reply to show off with his lyrical skills.

Here we go...

Bling bling bling, girls girls girls,
Shank this shank that all we hear,
A lie Jan? These boys talk fräff man,
Recycled stories 'bout gats and,
How they chased out the big cats,
Since when were cats scared of rats?
I smell a rat, I smell a liar,
It's a myth that's quite popular that,
Lying will take you further,
So keep chatting shit if you're a believer,
But people with brains, stand in this lane,
An together we'll achieve fame,
And live out the life these people are chatting,
With out the guns and all the gun clapping,
I'm not a bling bling guy myself,
But I'll shot that chain, obtain the wealth,
And use it to buy me hardware,
Set up studio in London somewhere,
Oh yer, I can see it now,
Blazin studio's in Glory town,
Merge it with Pornoffiti,
Buy some land and form our own city,

Residents of London are known as Londoners.

The city and the 32 boroughs had an estimated 7,421,228 inhabitants in 2004

76% of these seven million people classed their ethnic group as white

10% as Indian, Bangladeshi or Pakistani, 5% as black African, 5% as black Caribbean, 3% as mixed race and 1% as Chinese.

The project Me&My flag shows only a few Londoners, but it will continue until we collect photos of representatives of all the nations living in London.

Hi Kid. Do you still feel being a kid?

I think I'm in limbo in teenager-hood. Mind you, I did think I'd get through puberty before I started receding as much as this. I guess you can't have everything though, things could be a lot worse.

This current issue of PORNOFFITI is devoted to London city, the city of business; fashion and 100s of nations, but you are from the countryside. What does London mean to you? Do you have a critical or an enthusiastic view?

London is great, the majority of my friends live there, most of the work I do in this country is for people in London too, so I get to see everyone all the while. I go there at least once a month for gigs, parties, meetings or exhibitions, but I'd rather see all these good sides to London than get caught up in the politics and bullshit, which I think would happen if I lived there. If I move to a big city, I'll move to one abroad.

I haven't had chance to listen to your rap yet, but I heard that is as crazy as your pieces on the walls and illustrations. Could you tell the PORNOFFITI readers more about your mc'ing and rap influences?

My rap style is strictly 'ghetto karaoke'. I'm currently working on my 3rd solo LP, this time it's for Lex Records but the last two have been for our own Invisible Spies label. I'm in the studio recording vocals right now, I'm pulling out the stops and upping the ante this time round.

Are you a football fan? If so, what is your favourite club? Maybe you enjoy some others sports?

I aint into football at all, but some fellas I know like the fighting aspect to it, they text other hooligans and then duff up the enemy in a carpark before the police turn up.

What were your first inspirations to start bombing and raping? Your illustrations are really funny with a lot of humor in them, so do you feel like a successor of famous British humour like Monty Python or

Mr. Bean?

I got into graffiti the same as everyone else; I saw Subway Art and Style Wars when I was a kid. In terms of music, I got into UK rap before I was into American stuff, a local writer I knew ran a pirate station playing acts like London Posse, Son of Noise, Demon Boys, Gunshot etc.

Then I got into Beastie Boys, New Kingdom, Tha Alkaholiks, Wu Tang, Freestyle Fellowship and that. From there I discovered

BDP,

Ultramagnetics,
Big Daddy Kane, MC Shan, Biz Markie, Fab 5 Freddy et al;

so I did it all backwards really. I don't intentionally set out to make any of my work particularly funny; I just try to be honest and put my personality into it so in that sense any humour is very natural, it's just my way I guess.

Many English people follow "gossip scene". 12 years old girls wannabe like Jordan: big tits, no brain, 1000000£ on bank account. What do you think about that trend, is it any inspiration for you, or you just don't care about what stupid people do inside bigbrother's house?

We're all hypocrites. We like to promise ourselves we won't watch Big Brother but every year it becomes part life. it's addictive stuff.

People only tune in to see if the contestants will fuck or not, and when they do (or frig themselves with a wine bottle) everyone acts absolutely mortified.

we're the least sexually liberal nation in terms of the media, yet have the highest rate of teenage pregnancy. I prefer it in the rest of Europe where seeing a ladies nipple is no big deal, it's just part of your day.

Queen Elizabeth 2nd, Abi Titmuss or Elton John.

Who you would take for a rendezvous?

What's my motivation?

Great Britain is often viewed as a conservative country with its own measure system, different from European car driving, but at the same time it was the first country to open the door to people and workers from new United Europe. What do you think about that kind of schizophrenia?

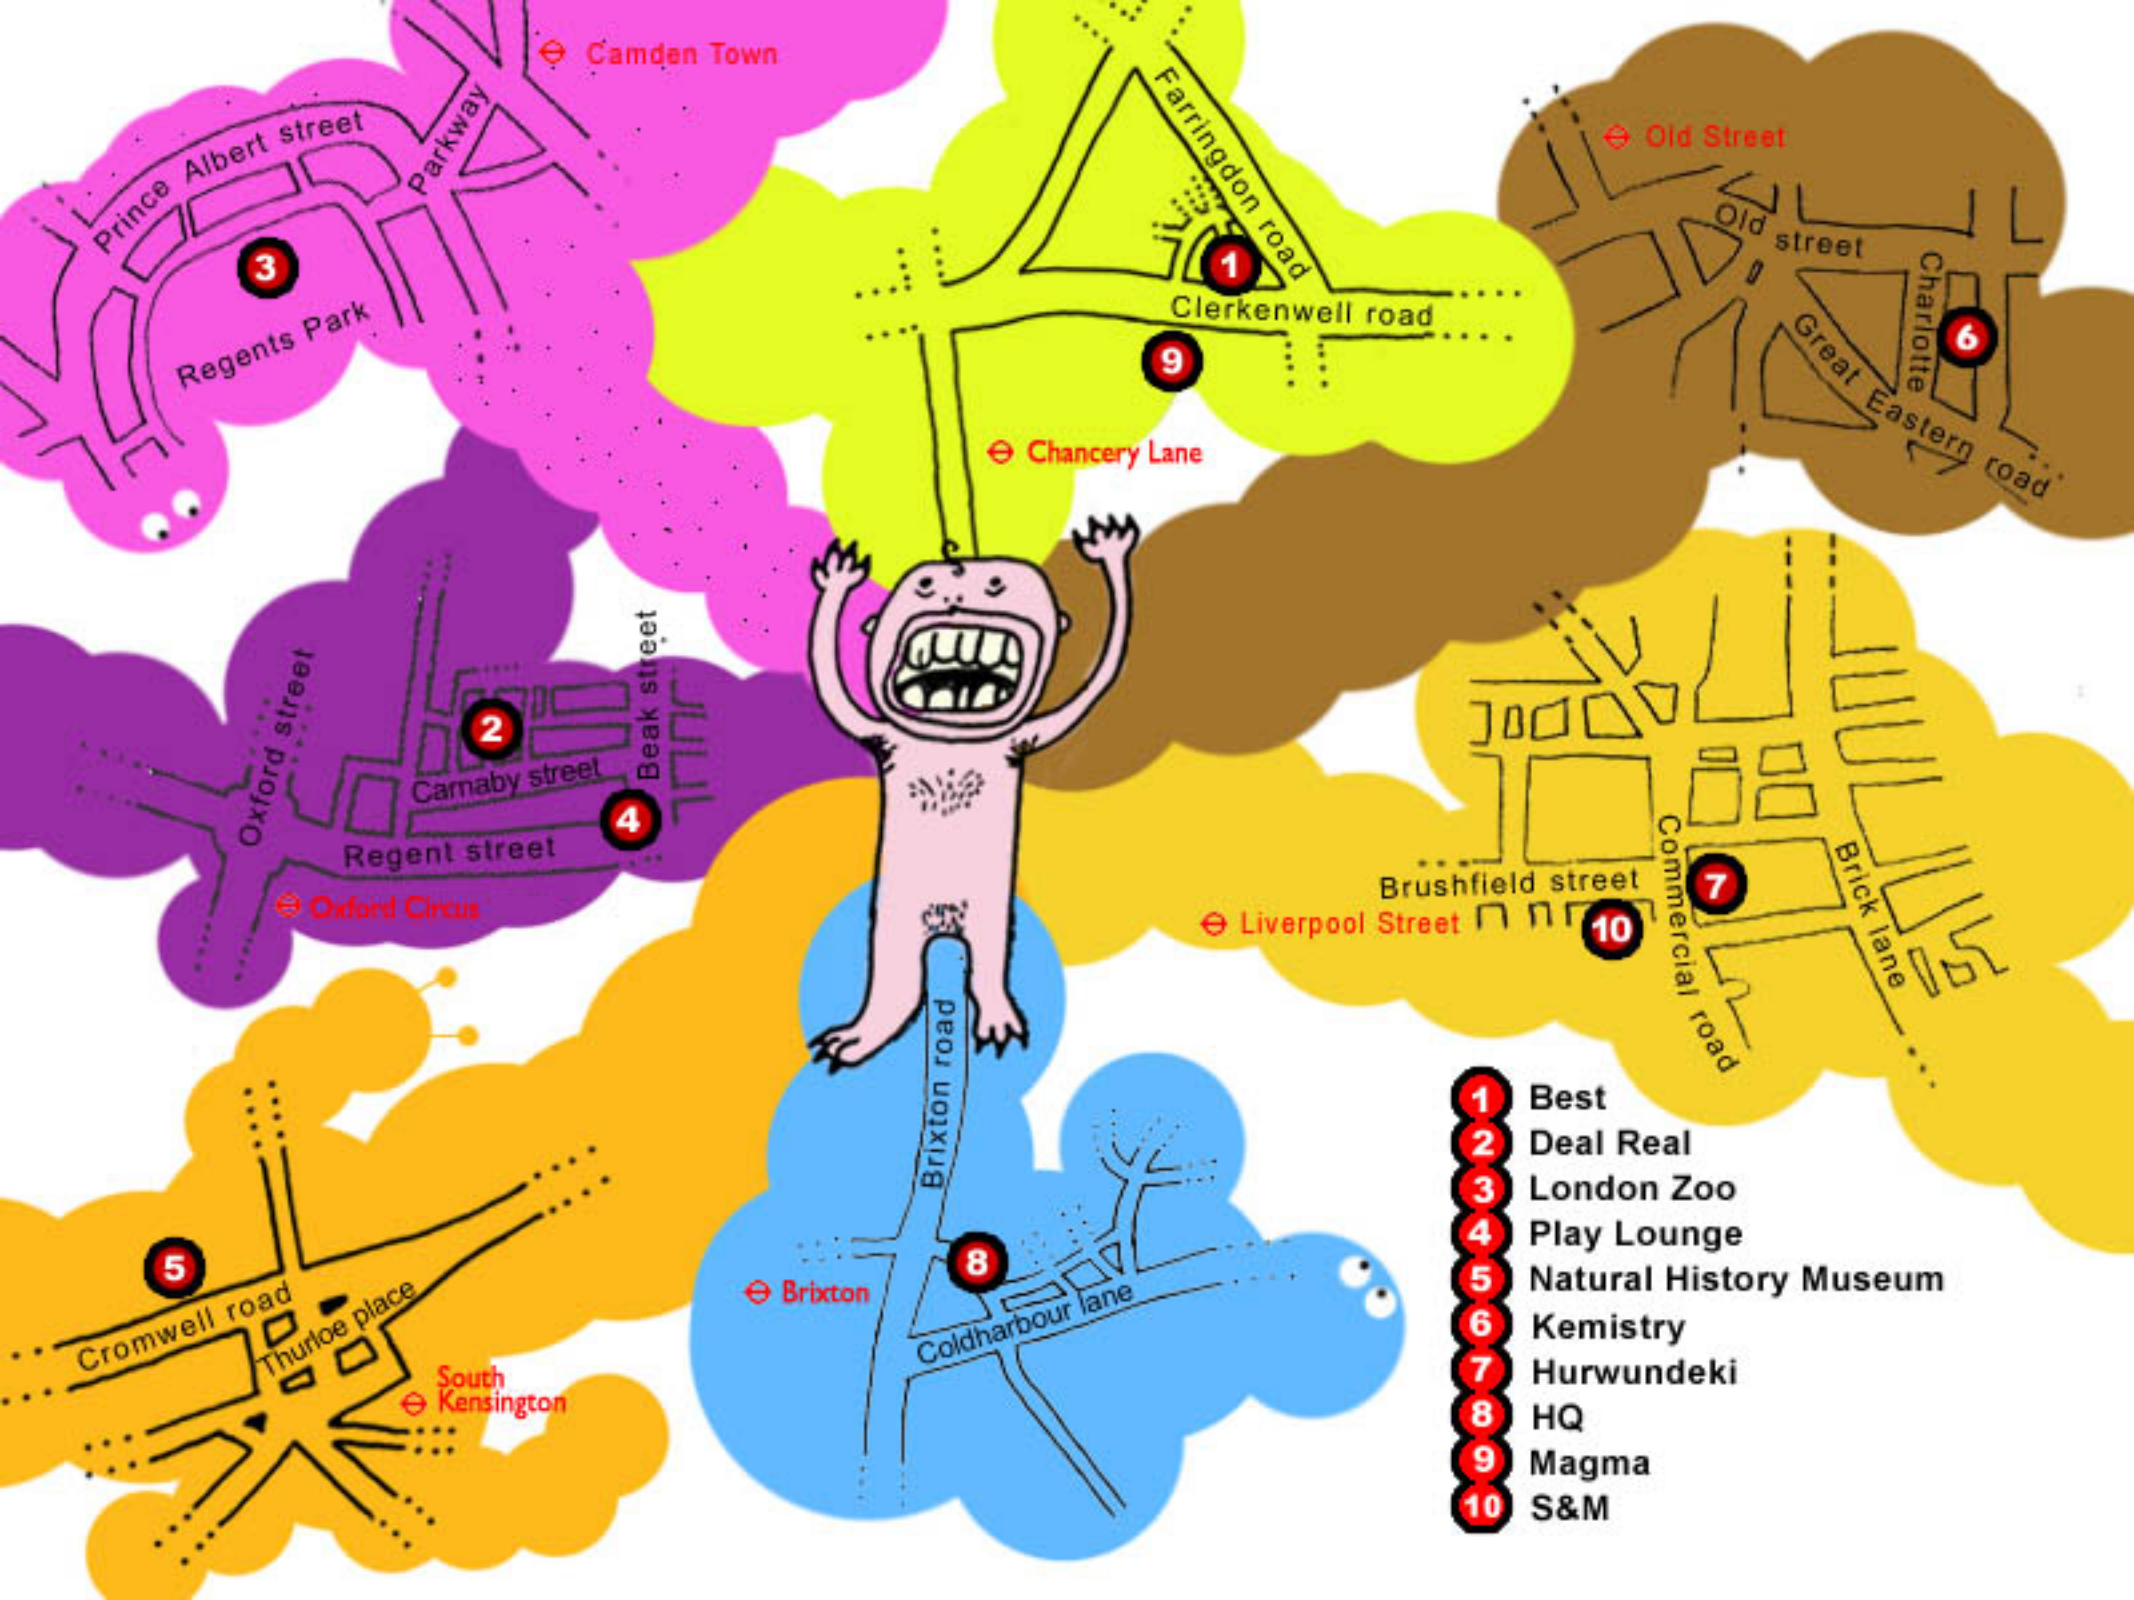

We're all hypocrites and full of contradictions.

I think England wants to keep as many traditions in place as possible, some of which I'm all for, but most of them are just pompous and pointless. The rest of Europe seems to have got things figured out a lot better; where girls smoking cigarettes is still considered sexy, boys don't get into trouble for riding a moped without a crash helmet on the wrong side of the road and they cook and eat every part of every animal.

BOROUGH OF HOLBORN
BACK HILL

A tiny shop on a sidestreet in Clerkenwell is a crossover of a retail space, gallery, distributor and a design studio. With their finest selection of goods from a variety of design fields and monthly exhibitions (with unmissable openings), Best established itself as a definite spot for all-things-cool. So next time you're around, be sure to drop by for quality products, good art or just for a beer and a chat with Niki and Kevin who make this place work.

From Lord Quasimoto to latest London's grime releases. From soucy bums to ugly Necro face on 100s records. From graff&music videos to the magazines like Underground Production or Hard2Burn. DealReal is so close to the trendy Carnaby Street, but you won't find any trendy gadgets there. Just pure boom bap, eskimo sound, dirty south and abstract hip hop. Word to the mother!!!!

London Zoo is considered to be one of the best in the world. Variety of species will impress even those of you who prefer flora than fauna. Check the weather forecast before you will go there.

Last time Porno Team went to the Zoo, they found all the animals drowned in the infamous english fog.

That is why have no photos.

Are you a toy fanatic? Do you feel excited when a new Gorillaz's toys are released? If so the small but amazing shop called "Play Lounge" is a place for you. Although it's not the biggest toy shop in London, it's one of the best. You can spend lots of cash and hours over there playing with funny plastic creatures.

All skulls & bones fans should visit the beautiful building of the Natural History Museum. There you can find da real dirty south bling bling at minerals section and embrions in jars for those who like to look at dead animals in jars. If you want to see some bouncy boobs, be sure to check out the Kyoto earthquake simulation. But without a doubt the fuckin best are dinosaurs!! Bones, skeletons, scary robots moving and doing grrrrr at you. It's free and you can meet (or meat) nice chicks and annoying kids over there.

T. rex

Let's make it clear. Lidl shops are saviour for all immigrants, the food has German quality but at the price of Chinese products. And you can also buy kids(4£) or a horse cover, if you have horse of course.

Lidl shops are all over London's suburbs

Kemistry Gallery is one of the most interesting places in London's gallery map. As it's written on the website the aim of the gallery is to showcase outstanding and inspirational international design from past and present. You shouldn't miss openings. That is the best opportunity to talk with the artists, buy rare works or just drink free beers. Parra, Geoff McFetridge, JayOne or Nima Falatoori are only some of the few exhibited over there. Trust the Pornoffiti and you won't be disappointed.

Without a doubt that is the best place
to get cheap and stylish clothes for Mr.Dandy
and Mrs.Trendy.
London loves it!!!!

When you step off the Brixton Station turn left, and after more less 100m turn left once again. Then go straight to the Brixton Market, and when you start to smell fish and meat it means you're there. Ask someone for HQ-da graff shop.

That's all you need to know about HQ in Brixton.

Magma bookshop is one of the best and expensive around London. But even if you don't have money for anything you won't be disappointed. I bet you've never seen so many books about design, architecture, illustrations, fashion, toys under one roof. Fuckin great place to visit and spend couple hours just to see what's goin' on in the design world. And if you get bored a little bit, you can always go downstairs, to the basement where you'll find an exhibition space. Magma is much more than an average bookshop, so you should visit it, sit on a couch and dive into creativity. Amen.

BIRMINGHAM105

Birmingham is a city and metropolitan borough in the English West Midlands. It is commonly considered to be England's "second city" and is the largest of England's core cities. The people of Birmingham are known as 'Brummies', a term derived from the city's nickname of Brum. This comes in turn from the city's dialect name, Brummagem. There is a distinctive Brummie dialect and accent. Birmingham is an important manufacturing and engineering centre, employing over 100,000 people in industry and contributing billions of pounds to the national economy. Over a quarter of the UK's exports originate in the greater Birmingham area. The city is home to two of the UK's oldest professional football teams: Aston Villa (1874) and Birmingham City (1875), both of whom currently play in the Premier League.
